Dulles Warns Against Red Subversion

CPYRGHT

Soviet Initiative Lost

However, the Soviet "Communist machine" has lost its initial drive, Dulles said.

"Its agricultural and industrial machines are creaking," he said. "The unity of the Communist world is no more. Yugoslavia, China and even little Albania defy Moscow. The new generation of intellectuals is in revolt."

During a question-and-answer period, Dulles said he is

"inclined to agree" that the United States should sell wheat to Russia. He said the sale should depend on credit arrangements made by the two nations.

'Why Starve People?'

"I don't believe we are going to accomplish very much by starving people who are willing to pay for food," Dulles said.

Other observations made by Dulles in answer to questions: Nothing would be accomplished by recognizing Red China.

The idea that the CIA was responsible for training police forces in Viet Nam without government approval is "preposterous."

Budget Secrecy Asked

"President Kennedy said he had approved training of the Viet Nam police force and he took responsibility for it," Dulles said.

Intimate details of military budgets should be revealed to congressional committees behind closed doors and not to the public.

The United States can win the cold war if it meets the Communist subversive threat to the free world, the former chief of the Central Intelligence Agency said here last night.

Allen Dulles Jr., 70, head of the CIA from 1953 to 1962, spoke at San Diego State College. About 1,100 persons attended the address in Peterson Gymnasium.

Dulles said the United States today is "morally, materially and militarily" the superior of the Soviet Union.

Subversion Noted

"It is chiefly in meeting the Communists' subversive threat to the free world that we lag," he said. "We must understand it better, we must expose publicly its plans and purpose, and we must organize to meet it."

Dulles said that while the United States has understood and prepared for the military menace of Communism, "we have misjudged and inadequately prepared to meet the nonmilitary advances of Communism in the newly developing areas of the world."

He said the Soviet Union and other Communist countries have an advantage over the United States in that this country does not use tactics of infiltration and subversion of foreign governments.
